

Is Your Child Really Ready for a New School Year?

It's back-to-school time and you've spent hours on making sure your child has new pencils, paper and clothes, but do they have the necessary learning skills to use these new supplies? Are they able to keep up with note taking to fill those new notebooks with important information they will be taught? Will they remember their homework assignments long enough to use those brand new pencils to write them down? If basic learning skills like memory, logic & reasoning, auditory and visual processing and processing speed are not working correctly, your child is not REALLY ready for a new school year.

Help completely prepare your child for a new school year by calling today to schedule a comprehensive skills assessment.
